

MUSICAL COMEDY OPENS AT BUTLER MONDAY NIGHT

22—COUNT 'EM—22 BEAUTIFUL
MAIDENS IN THE FAMOUS CHORUS.

"Jakey, Mickey and Ikey" will be the first attraction presented by the Allen Curtis Musical Comedy company, which opens at the Butler theater Monday evening. This piece is considered as one of Weber and Fields' greatest hits and has been played to crowded houses in the metropolitan cities. The company is composed of twenty-two people, the majority being beautiful maids of a tender age, and who created havoc among the members of the bald-headed row in Reno theaters where they have played for the past nine weeks.

Manager Aylesworth of the Butler has secured the company for a four-weeks' engagement, two of which will be played in this city. The show will be changed three times a week and each performance is guaranteed to produce two and one-half hours of solid fun. The prices will be 25c, 50c and 75c.

BOB LUNDIE IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Bobbie Lundie, the well-known welterweight, met with an accident Thursday night that almost resulted in his taking the final count from the ring. He was handling an automatic revolver before a number of friends in the Bank saloon and accidentally shot himself in the left hand. That it is the "unloaded" gun that does the damage was proven true in this case, as Lundie had just extracted the shells from the revolver and then carelessly pulled the trigger. He had overlooked taking out a shell that remained in the barrel, thus the accident. The gun was a .25 calibre and the bullet passed through the fleshy part of his hand, between the index and second fingers. As no bones were broken, Bobbie will be back on his job at the placers within a couple of weeks.

A coincidence connected with Lundie's accident was that on the day it occurred Bobbie had received word from San Francisco that his brother, who is also an athlete, had barely escaped drowning in the bay.—Manhattan Mail.

RICH STRIKE MADE IN UNION NO. 9 AT MANHATTAN

Promises to Become a Second Mohawk
---Milo Plamenaz the Lucky Operator of Leases Strikes Ore That Will Put Him on Easy Street

MANHATTAN, April 22.—The Plamenaz lease on the Union No. 9 gives greater promise of developing into a second Mohawk than anything yet encountered in Manhattan. A representative of the Mail visited the mine this morning and to say that he was surprised with what he saw is putting it very mildly.

At the 291-foot level, in the incline shaft, a body of ore has been broken into that is richer than anything else found in the camp. From the surface to the bottom of the incline the lead has been followed, varying in width from only a few inches to two feet. Drifts were run on the 150 and 235-foot levels and ore was taken out that milled on an average of $40 to the ton in gold. A drift is now being pushed south on the 235-foot level and the incline is being sunk on the vein.

In the incline shaft below the 235-foot level and down to the 282-foot point, the pay streak was erratic, ranging from four to twelve inches in width. At the 282-foot point the pay streak was four inches wide, and at 291 it had widened to twenty inches. Fourteen inches of the vein matter is a conglomerate composed principally of altered schist and sugar quartz with considerable of the characteristic egg-shell spar of that section of the camp, and six inches of blue lime-shale sulphide. The incline is being sunk, breaking from the hanging wall, which is very smooth and along which is a highly oxidized gouge of talc and manganese. Concerning the value of the ore, Mr. Plamenaz gave out the following statement to the Mail.

"The fourteen inches of altered schist and quartz will run between $1500 and $2000 to the ton and the sulphides will average close to $150 per ton. From the latter I had an average sample run here which went $145.60 and another in Tonopah which went $161.30 in gold to the ton. At the 289-foot point I took a sample across fourteen inches of the unaltered schist on the footwall and it assayed $33.10 per ton."

The hanging wall is porphyry and the footwall is schist. At the 245-foot point the ledge begins straightening up and is now approaching nearly the vertical.

To prevent "high-grading," Mr.

Plamenaz has stationed a guard at the mine and no one is allowed to go down in the shaft unless bearing an order from either Mr. Plamenaz or the Manhattan Dexter company.

SHOTS FLY AND MINER JUST DODGES DEATH

A. W. Miller, a miner of Searchlight had a narrow escape Sunday last about 2 p. m. Following a heated discussion with Charles Smithson, the latter drew a revolver. Miller started to run and Smithson fired at him twice, both shots missing the mark. After crashing through a window the ball passed so close to two men not interested in the fight as to be felt in its flight.

Smithson was arrested and placed under bond in the sum of $1000. Miller in his haste to get out of range sprained his leg and is now on the shelf. It is understood that the trouble grew out of Smithson's interference with the divorce troubles of the Millers. Miller's wife secured a divorce at the last term of the district court, this having been the fourth divorce proceedings between the parties. The suits were all brought by Mrs. Miller, the first two being dismissed. The third resulted in decree by default and a division of the community property. The parties were later remarried at Tacoma, Washington. In the last case the decree was given on the ground of non-support.

N. CARLSON SICK IN SAN FRANCISCO HOSPITAL.

Word was received in this city yesterday from San Francisco stating that N. Carlson, proprietor of the Alamo saloon, was ill in a hospital there suffering from dropsy. His condition is not serious and it is expected that he will return here at an early date.

OLE ELLIOTT WINS $17,500 FROM JOHN HARNAN AT STUD

(Special to the Bonanza.)
RENO, April 22.—In one of the most spirited and sensational poker games ever played in the west, beginning early last night and lasting until an early hour this morning, John Harnan, the millionaire mine owner of this state and Colorado, shuffled away $17,500 to Ole Elliott. The Goldfield capitalist, mine owner and saloonkeeper.

The game played was stud poker and was played by the two men in the cardroom of the Overland hotel, in the presence of a large number of interested spectators. Eye witnesses state that never before have they witnessed a game of any kind which was more interesting and which held bigger stakes than the quiet affair in which the two mining men were principals last night at the Overland hotel.

Only about $1,250 in money was on the table during the game, but two bookkeepers kept books on the game. They were Jack Ramsey, day clerk at the Overland, and a bar-keeper of this city. About 4 o'clock this morning Harnan was indebted to Elliott in the sum of $19,600, according to the books kept by the two men. It is said by onlookers that at one time he owed Elliott $22,500. Toward the end of the game Harnan had a run of luck and cut his losses down to about $17,000.

The biggest pot made during the game held $8000, and was won by Elliott, who had an ace "in the hole." Both men were "bluuing," and on the show-down Harnan had a king buried. Elliott turned over his ace and claimed the big pot. Harnan lost $6000 in one pot. He staked this amount on a pair of nines, and when the show-down came Elliott disclosed a pair of aces.

The men played silently and with very little comment. The only halts in the game were caused by cigars or drinks being served to the men. Occasionally Harnan would whisper to the bookkeepers for information as to how the books stood, and when told would display no excitement other than to whisper to the men not to "advertise it."

Elliott's friends attempted several times to get him to quit the game when he was several thousands dollars to the good, but Harnan always remonstrated when the subject was broached.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT CONTINUED.

The damage suit of Grace Riggsbee, an actress, for $25,000, against George Phenix, proprietor of the Grand rooming house in Reno, was continued indefinitely yesterday morning on motion of counsel. The damage proceedings will be called up and rest for hearing on next calendar day. The action is for alleged injuries received when the plaintiff is said to have been thrown down a flight of stairs by Mr. Phenix.
